Protect Yourself From Accidental Carbon Monoxide Poisoning

Carbon Monoxide (CO) is an odorless and colorless gas found in fumes produced any time you burn fuel in cars or trucks, small engines, stoves, lanterns, grills, fireplaces, gas ranges, or furnaces. CO can build up indoors and poison people and animals who breathe it. Ventilation does not guarantee safety.

The most common symptoms of CO poisoning are headache, dizziness, weakness, upset stomach, vomiting, chest pain, and confusion. CO symptoms are often described as "flu-like." If you breathe in a lot of CO it can make you pass out or kill you. People who are sleeping or drunk can die from CO poisoning before they have symptoms.

A few ways to help prevent CO poisoning are to install a battery operated or battery back-up CO detector in your home, have gas, oil, or coal burning appliances serviced by a qualified technician every year, have your chimney checked or cleaned every year, never use a gas range or oven for heating, never use a generator inside your home, basement, or garage less than 20 feet from any window, door, or vent, and never run your car or truck inside a garage that is attached to a house even with the garage door open.

For more detailed information regarding CO poisoning, symptoms, and poisoning prevention, please visit <https://www.cdc.gov/co/faqs.htm>. Remember, winter can be a prime time for accidental CO poisoning, so please educate yourself on how you can keep yourself and your loved ones safe against this silent and deadly gas.
